In Sickness and In Debt: Using Consumer Law to Help Elders Facing Overwhelming Medical Bills

The National Consumer Law Center (NCLC) is pleased to announce the availability of a new publication, the latest in a series of practice packages designed to help elder advocates learn how to bring various types of consumer law cases. This publication provides a primer on how to help elder clients faced with unmanageable medical debt. Strategies discussed include non-litigation approaches, affirmative litigation under fair debt collection practices acts and other statutes, and useful legal defenses for elders sued over medical debt.

One copy per organization is free to non-profit organizations serving seniors and to legal services programs. For other organizations or individuals and for additional copies, the cost will be $35.00.
