

Consumer Class Actions (6th ed. 2006)

About the Authors

Stuart T. Rossman is director of litigation at NCLC. After thirteen years of private trial practice in Boston, he served as chief of the Trial Division and chief of the Business and Labor Protection Bureau at the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office from 1991 to 1999. He was a co-author of Consumer Class Actions (5th ed. 2002), is a former chair of the Volunteer Lawyers Project, Massachusetts' largest pro bono legal referral service program, and is on the adjunct faculty at the Northeastern University School of Law, teaching civil trial advocacy, and at Suffolk University Law School, teaching consumer law.

Charles Delbaum is a staff attorney at NCLC focusing on class action litigation. Immediately prior to joining NCLC in 2005, he was the director of litigation and advocacy at New Orleans Legal Assistance for thirteen years. He also supervised the Tulane Law School consumer/foreclosure clinic, co-authored a chapter on Louisiana Consumer Law for the 2001 and 2005 Louisiana Legal Services Desk books, and presented on consumer and other Louisiana topics at numerous CLEs. In 2000, he was the recipient of the Louisiana State Bar Association Pro Bono Publico Career Service Award. He has been a plaintiff's attorney for over thirty years.

Seth R. Lesser is a partner with the Locks Law Firm, with offices in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. He has spent over a decade committed to class, representative and tort actions on behalf of defrauded and injured businesses and people. He regularly is asked to speak on class action issues at conferences; has served in local and national bar association positions; regularly publishes on legal matters, including articles on class action law, privacy law, and environmental and mass tort issues; and has served as the representative of the American Council on Consumer Interests to the United Nations.

Robert Bramson is a partner with Bramson, Plutzik, Mahler & Birkhaeuser, LLP of Walnut Creek, California, specializing in consumer class actions. He conceived of and acted as co-reporter for the National Association of Consumer Advocates, Standards and Guidelines For Litigating and Settling Consumer Class Actions, and sat on NACA's Board of Directors from 1997 to 2003. His advocacy has resulted in such significant decisions as Klussman v. Cross Country Bank, 134 Cal. App. 4th 1283 (2005); Acree v. General Motors Acceptance Corp., 92 Cal. App. 4th 385 (2001); and Heartland Communications, Inc. v. Sprint Corp., 161 F.R.D. 111 (D. Kan. 1995).

Timothy E. Eble is a contributing author to Conte & Newberg, Newberg on Class Actions. He has published several book chapters and articles in the field of federal practice and class action litigation. His practice involves litigating and consulting in complex and class action cases. He has at various times served as an expert on class action issues and the award of attorney fees, as lead counsel, class counsel, administrative class counsel, and as counsel for interveners and objectors, and he has represented judges in mandamus proceedings arising from class action rulings. His class action information site may be found at www.classactionlitigation.com.

Stephen Gardner is director of litigation for the Center for Science in the Public Interest and of counsel to NCLC. Previously, he was assistant dean of clinical education at Southern Methodist University School of Law, assistant attorney general in both Texas and New York, students' attorney at the University of Texas, and a legal aid attorney at what is now Texas Rio Grande Legal Services.

Thomas Grande is a partner in Davis Levin Livingston Grande in Honolulu, Hawaii. Mr. Grande represents consumers in class actions in state and federal courts and relators under the state and federal false claims acts (qui tam actions) in cases across the United States. He is past co-chair of the American Bar Association Section of Litigation Subcommittee on State Class Action Law and is co-chair of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America Qui Tam Litigation Group. He is a frequent speaker and author on class actions and litigation under the False Claims Act. Mr. Grande is editor in chief emeritus of the ABA Survey of State Class Action Law.

Michael Malakoff has been a member since 1971 of Malakoff Doyle & Finberg, PC, where he specializes in class action litigation. He is a founding member of the National Association of Consumer Advocates (“NACA”) and served on its board. Over the last thirty years, he has participated in over 200 class actions, beginning as a former Regional Smith Fellow working at Neighborhood Legal Services Association (“NLSA”) (in Pittsburgh) in 1970–71. An example of a class action in which he has recently participated is the protracted tax lien litigation in Pollice v. National Tax Funding, Litig., 225 F.3d 379 (3d Cir. 2000). He was a contributing author to the fourth edition of this volume.

Acknowledgments: This edition builds on the five prior editions and we continue to be indebted to all contributors to those prior editions, especially Joel Stein, author of the first edition, Dan Edelman, co-author of the second through fifth editions, Yvonne Rosmarin, co-author of the second and third editions, and Jon Sheldon, co-author of the fourth edition. We would also like to thank Jon Sheldon for his substantive contributions to chapter 2 of this edition, and the class action attorneys around the country who provided pleadings for this volume’s appendices and CD-Rom, including Elizabeth Cabraser, The Impact Fund, Community Legal Services of Philadelphia, William Bogot, Mark Chavez, David Searles, Michael Donovan, Kieron Quinn, Jim Sturdevant, John Roddy, Gary Klein, Alan White, Kirsten Keefe, Cary Flitter, Cyrus Mehri, Steve Angsterich, Jim Pietz, Rand Bragg, F. Paul Bland, Jr., and Michael Quirk. Thanks also to Susan Dorsey, Scott Saiki, Brandee Faria, and Vivien Akiyama for research assistance.

We also want to thank the National Association of Consumer Advocates for giving us permission to reprint its class action guidelines, the American Bar Association for granting permission to reprint its Survey of State Class Action Law, and the Bureau of National Affairs, Inc. for giving permission to reprint on the CD-Rom the article by Katherine Kinsella.

We are especially grateful to Dorothy Tan for editorial supervision; Nathan Day for editorial assistance; Shirlron Williams for assistance checking citations; Shannon Halbrook for production assistance; Mary McLean for indexing; Xylutions for typesetting services; and Neil Fogarty of Law Disks for preparing the CD-Rom.