Coalition Letter to the Federal Housing Finance Agency, Fannie Mae, and Freddie Mac Urging the GSEs to Include Language Preference in the Uniform Residential Loan Application

Not including language preference in the Uniform Residential Loan Application (URLA) would be a serious setback for mainstreaming language access and for helping consumers who are not fluent in English get correct and understandable information. During the predatory lending era and the foreclosure crisis, people who were not fluent in English misunderstood or were misled because the communications were not in a language they could understand.
