

Confronting Criminal Justice Debt: Introduction and Impact on Communities of Color

October 4, 2017

Americas justice system is increasingly financed by the imposition of heavy fines, fees, and costs on individuals accused of crimes and civil infractions. The costs are disproportionately born by the poor and people of color. This webinar will provide an overview of criminal justice debt as an urgent racial justice problem. It will outline key policy reforms and provide an overview of consumer, constitutional, and criminal litigation issues that arise with criminal justice debt.

Speakers:

Alexis Harris, Professor of Sociology, University of Washington

Thomas Harvey, Executive Director/Co-Founder, ArchCity Defenders

Mitali Nagrecha, Director, Harvard University National Criminal Justice Debt Initiative

Moderator: Abby Shafroth, Staff Attorney, National Consumer Law Center

Additional material:

Confronting Criminal Justice Debt: A Guide for Litigation \(NCLC\)

Confronting Criminal Justice Debt: A Guide for Policy Reform \(CJPP\)